Financial protection against critical, chronic and terminal illnesses

As common as they seem to be, illnesses wreak havoc on the lives of Americans every day – disrupting both family life and financial plans. A life-changing ordeal, illnesses can often cause financial disruption — from paying medical expenses to covering child care and the mortgage.

There is a way, though, to help protect your financial security. Life insurance provides a death benefit to beneficiaries when the insured passes away. But what kind of protection do you have while alive? Unlike many other carriers, Midland National offers accelerated death benefit endorsements for critical, chronic and terminal illnesses with the purchase of our Premier Term life insurance product, at no additional premium.

How it works

Accelerated death benefits attached to a life insurance policy allow the policyowner to accelerate a portion of the death benefit*, in order to use the benefit while the insured is still living. There can be several triggers for this to occur: the insured (the person whose life is covered under the policy) is diagnosed with a qualifying critical, chronic or terminal illness. For those who qualify, these benefits are added to the policy at no additional premium at the time of issue.

Prepare for the unexpected with living benefits

The unexpected can and does happen. How do you plan to pay for extended nursing care for a chronic condition or the high cost of treatment if you are diagnosed with a critical illness like cancer? If you plan to use your own funds, keep the potential costs in mind.

Here are some of the costs you might expect to pay:

- Private room in a nursing home – $116,796 per year<sup>1</sup>
- Licensed home health aide (non-Medicare certified) – $75,504 per year<sup>1</sup>

*Throughout this document, “death benefit” means the face amount or proceeds payable to the beneficiary upon proof of insured’s death.

Frequently asked questions

How do I qualify for accelerated death benefits?

A physician must provide written certification that the insured is critically, chronically, or terminally ill.

- Critical illness: Conditions that may qualify for the critical illness benefit include heart attack, cancer, stroke, major organ transplant, and kidney failure. Please contact your agent for complete details and definitions of benefits and conditions pertaining to this endorsement. The policyowner is allowed an election for each occurrence of a specified medical condition. The policyowner must file the claim within 12 months of the specified event occurrence.
- Chronic illness: One is considered chronically ill when the insured has been certified through a written certification by a physician within the last 12 months as:
  1. Being unable to perform, for at least 90 days without substantial assistance from another person, at least two activities of daily living;
or
  2. Requiring substantial supervision by another person, to protect oneself from threats to health and safety due to severe cognitive impairment.
- Terminal illness: One is considered terminally ill when a physician provides written certification that the insured has been diagnosed with a medical condition which results in a life span of 24 months or less. (12 months or less in Florida).

For complete details regarding the definitions and qualifications of these benefits, please speak with your agent.

Does the severity of the illness affect the benefit payment amount?

Yes. While the Chronic and Critical Illness benefits provided by our Premier Term life insurance may provide valuable benefits, it is also important to remember that whether benefits are payable, as well as the amount of any benefit, will depend on the impact an illness has on future mortality. Many illnesses, even certain forms of cancer, actually have a minimal impact on future mortality. This means that while your illness may be serious, it could be of a nature that would result in either a small benefit or even no benefit at all. If you make a claim to receive these benefits, we will assess mortality and other factors in determining the amount of any benefit that may be payable. We may also determine that a minimum impact to mortality or another factor results in no benefit being payable.

How much of the policy death benefit can be accelerated?

The maximum amount of death benefit available for acceleration is $2,000,000 per policy*, however, the actual amount you would receive for a critical or chronic illness would depend on the time you elect the benefit. Additionally, the final payment amount we determine for you will be reduced by two factors:

1. An actuarial discount, which is essentially a discount based on our evaluation of your life expectancy. The shorter the life expectancy, the larger your payment, and the longer the life expectancy, the smaller the payments.

*Policies receiving the terminal illness only endorsement can accelerate up to $1,000,000 per policy.

Did you know?

Individuals with chronic and mental health conditions make up 90% of health care expenses in the United States each year.<sup>2</sup>

2. An administrative fee of $500 or less.

- Critical illness: The minimum accelerated amount at each election, except the final election, is 10% of the death benefit on the election date or $100,000, whichever is less. The maximum per election is 90% of the death benefit on the initial election date or $1,000,000, whichever is less. One election can be made for each different occurrence of a specified critical illness event. A discount factor will be applied to the accelerated death benefit payment.*
- Chronic illness: The minimum accelerated amount at each election, except the final election, is 5% of the death benefit on the election date or $50,000, whichever is less. The maximum per election is 24% of the death benefit on the initial election date or $480,000, whichever is less. One election is available every 12 months. A discount factor will be applied to the accelerated death benefit payment.*
- Terminal illness: The minimum accelerated amount is 10% of the death benefit or $100,000, whichever is less on the election date. The maximum that can be accelerated is 90% of the death benefit on the election date or $1,000,000, whichever is less. Only one election per policy can be made for terminal illness. A discount factor will be applied to the accelerated death benefit payment.*

How much does the accelerated death benefit cost?

There is no additional premium at issue for the accelerated death benefit feature. However, we charge an administrative fee for each election, after applying the discount to the accelerated death benefit amount. The current and maximum administrative fee for a terminal illness election is $200. The current administrative fee for each critical and chronic illness election is $250, and the maximum is $500. The administrative fee may vary by jurisdiction.

How can these benefits be offered with no additional premium charge?

The payment is designed to be actuarially equivalent to the death benefit that would have been paid at the time of death. Because of the time value of money (present money has a higher value than future money) we discount the actual payment made from the full death benefit accelerated.

A payment the policyowner may receive will be less than the amount of death benefit accelerated because the benefit is paid prior to death. An actual payment depends on factors such as life expectancy and the interest rate environment at the time of election. A shorter life expectancy and/or lower interest rate will lead to a higher accelerated death benefit payment.

What effect does acceleration of the death benefit have on the life insurance policy?

The death benefit of the life insurance policy will be reduced by the full amount that is accelerated, prior to the discount.

* The death benefit will be reduced by the amount of the death benefit accelerated. Since benefits are paid prior to death, a discount will be applied to the death benefit accelerated. As a result, the actual amount received will be less than the amount of the death benefit accelerated.

Did you know?

An estimated 6.9 million Americans age 65 and older are living with Alzheimer's dementia in 2024.<sup>3</sup>

Do I have to pay premiums after electing a benefit?

For a terminal illness election, Midland National waives all premiums after paying the benefit. For chronic and critical illness elections, premiums are not waived. However, future premium payment amounts are reduced because they will be based upon a lower remaining death benefit amount. The policy fee will remain the same.

May I elect to receive an accelerated death benefit right away?

There is no waiting period after you elect to accelerate the death benefit, as long as a physician certifies that the insured meets the qualifications for the benefit as defined in the endorsement. Please note that the physician must certify that the insured has been chronically ill for at least the previous 90 days in order to qualify for a chronic illness benefit.

Did you know?

More than 944,800 Americans die of heart disease or stroke every year —that's more than 1 in 3 deaths.<sup>4</sup>

Do I have to spend the money on medical-related expenses?

Midland National does not require you to submit receipts or use the benefit to cover specific costs. Generally, the accelerated benefit payment can be used for any purpose with few limitations or restrictions on benefits. See the “Are there tax consequences?” section below for details on tax treatment.

Is it possible to qualify for a life insurance policy, but not the accelerated death benefit feature?

Yes. You will not qualify for critical or chronic illness accelerated death benefits if your health is rated too far below a certain underwriting risk classification or if you have a specific health condition that requires an extra premium charge known as a “medical flat extra.” If you qualify for life insurance coverage, then the terminal illness accelerated death benefit endorsement will be issued with the policy. Ask your Midland National agent to help determine which benefit is available in your case. Benefit availability differs by state and type of life insurance policy.

Are these endorsements the same as long-term care insurance?

No. The Accelerated Death Benefit Endorsement for critical, chronic and terminal illness provides a portion of the life insurance policy’s death benefit in advance, so the ultimate policy death benefit paid to the beneficiary is reduced. Traditional long-term care insurance can be a stand-alone policy or optional rider with its own premiums. Please keep in mind that these benefits are not intended to replace health or disability insurance.

Are there tax consequences?

Since the accelerated benefits are life insurance proceeds, they are generally tax-free. However there are circumstances that can make them taxable. Midland National does not give legal or tax advice. Please consult with and rely on a qualified legal representative or tax advisor.
