

ESTATE PLANNING

Beneficiary Defective Inheritor's Trust (BDIT)

CONCEPT APPLIED:

A third party creates an irrevocable trust granting beneficiaries specific powers over the trust assets. The trust is highly complex, but with proper implementation, it facilitates asset protection, tax-efficient growth, and wealth transfer to future generations.

HOW IT WORKS:

A third party funds the BDIT with a modest initial gift (often using Crummey withdrawal powers for gift tax exclusion purposes), retaining no powers that would cause the trust to be taxed to them.

The trust may purchase a life insurance policy on the beneficiary for estate tax liquidity without selling assets. It can also buy appreciating assets from the beneficiary at fair market value, often using a promissory note—an approach that secures valuable assets but avoids triggering gift taxes.

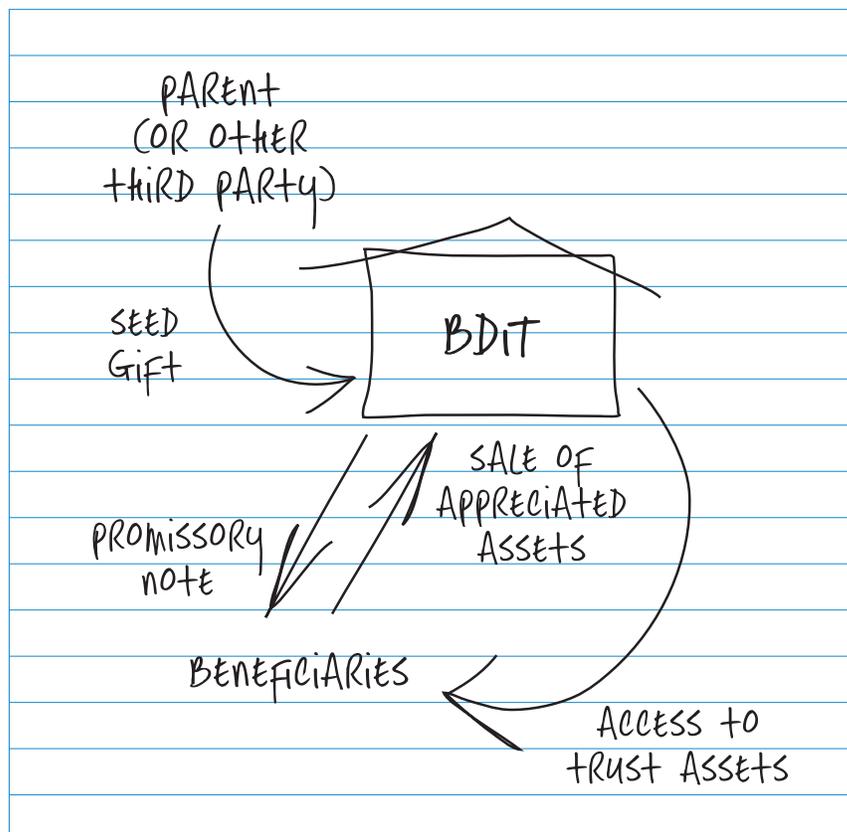

The beneficiary has significant access to trust assets and pays income tax on earnings, enabling tax-free growth and keeping assets and appreciation outside the taxable estate.

WHY IS IT USEFUL?

A BDIT allows high-net-worth individuals to transfer appreciating assets out of their estates through a “seed gift and sale” strategy. While complex, it minimizes estate taxes, preserves control over assets, and provides strong protection against creditors, ensuring long-term wealth preservation and security.

50 WORDS OR LESS

A BDIT is an irrevocable trust funded by a third party (usually a parent), allowing beneficiaries to manage assets outside their taxable estates. Through a “seed gift and sale” strategy and intentionally defective grantor trust rules, income tax shifts to beneficiaries—maximizing compounding growth, wealth preservation, and tax-efficient wealth transfer.

Copyright 2026, PGI Partners, Inc., 921 East 86th Street, Suite 100, Indianapolis, Indiana 46240. All rights reserved.

Sammons Financial® is the marketing name for Sammons® Financial Group, Inc.'s member companies, including Midland National® Life Insurance Company. Annuities and life insurance are issued by, and product guarantees are solely the responsibility of, Midland National® Life Insurance Company.

PGI Partners, Inc. is an independent third-party company and is not affiliated with Midland National® Life Insurance Company.

Neither Midland National® Life Insurance Company nor its agents give legal or tax advice. Consumers are advised to consult with and rely on a qualified legal or tax advisor before entering into or paying additional premiums with respect to such arrangements.