

CHARITABLE GIVING

Wealth Replacement Using Life Insurance

CONCEPT APPLIED:

Wealth replacement is an estate planning technique that lets donors make substantial gifts to charity without compromising the financial security of family members.

HOW IT WORKS:

A donor funds a charitable remainder trust (CRT) with long-term appreciated property (held for longer than one year) and an ILIT with a life insurance policy. The donor uses the annual income from the CRT to make gifts to the ILIT to pay the insurance premiums. At the owner's death, the selected charity receives the remainder amount in the CRT, and the ILIT receives the policy death benefits. The trustee distributes policy proceeds to the donor's heirs.

WHY IS IT USEFUL?

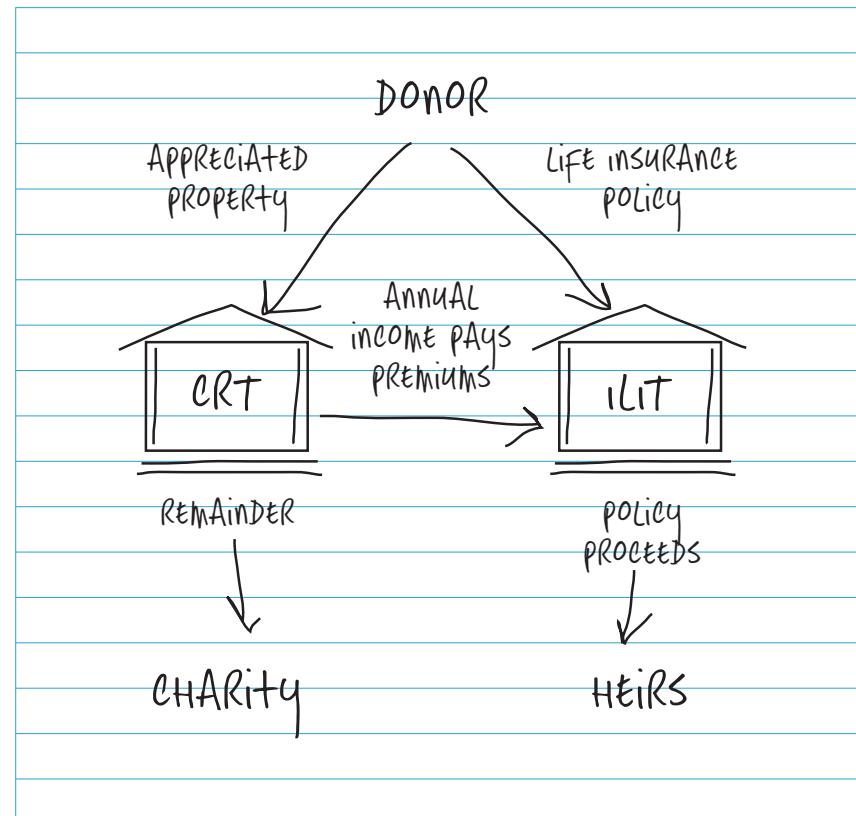

The primary advantage is the donor's ability to make a major charitable gift without adversely affecting family inheritances.

However, the donor also:

- removes the donated property and the life insurance from the gross estate,
- receives a tax deduction for the present value of the charity's remainder interest on the initial transfer (subject to limitations), and
- avoids initial imposition of capital gains tax on appreciated property transferred to the CRT.

50 WORDS OR LESS

By combining a charitable remainder trust (CRT), an irrevocable life insurance trust (ILIT) and a life insurance policy, donors can (1) make large charitable gifts and (2) replace the value of the donated assets with life insurance that benefits heirs.

The term financial professional is not intended to imply engagement in an advisory business in which compensation is not related to sales. Financial professionals that are insurance licensed will be paid a commission on the sale of an insurance product.

While the primary use of life insurance is death benefit protection, you may also have other needs that can be met through life insurance. Please note that Midland National does not require their agents to use any of these sales concepts.

Neither Midland National nor its agents give tax advice. Consumers are advised to consult with and rely on a qualified legal or tax advisor before entering into or paying additional premiums with respect to such arrangements. Estate planning is a complex legal process and should be done in collaboration with an attorney, accountant, and trust officers, etc. Trusts should be drafted only by an attorney familiar with such matters.
